Spring break is upon us, and if you haven't taken a breather since Christmas holidays, it's high time you booked out at least a long weekend. You don't have to go far -- there are plenty of places around L.A. to help you get into full vacation mode even though you may just be a short freeway jaunt away from home. Try one of these four options, for example. (Straw hats and umbrella drinks are optional.)

JW Marriott: L.A. Live is the place to be these days, and the JW Marriott is right in the thick of things but peaceful enough to offer you respite when you're ready to retire from the din. Their spring break package encourages what they call an "urban shopping adventure," giving guests insider access to the fashion district -- and below-retail prices. Book it on a Saturday or Sunday for $299 and get valet parking, deluxe accommodations, a three-hour guided tour of the L.A. Fashion District and breakfast for two at LA Market Restaurant. Just make sure you use the code XYO when you book.

900 W. Olympic Blvd.; 213-765-8600

Jamaica Bay Inn: You may have been to Marina Del Rey a million times before, but staying at the Jamaica Bay Inn makes you feel like you're a million miles away. So if the seaside is calling, they have a great Spring Break Getaway package starting at $279 per night. What does that get you? A double queen room, milk and cookies to greet you when you get there, a full breakfast for up to four people every morning, and four bike rentals for you to tool around on the beach.

4175 Admiralty Way, Marina del Rey; 310-823-5333
